

This month we talked to Jerry "Buz" Sawyer, avid motorcyclist and owner of Buz Music Entertainment. We learned about Buz from an unlikely source, he had made a brochure about himself instead of a resume, to introduce himself to the new Victory Dealers in Port Charlotte. He's the proud owner of a 2004 Victory (check the matching shirt!) but there is a lot more than this to the man.

He's had a love of music and electronics a long time. He's served our country in Viet Nam as a radioman 2nd class. He's worked for such illustrious companies as Honeywell Information Systems, NEC Information Systems, and Irwin Magnetic Systems before owning his own personal computer consultation firm.

After a while the computer market changed due to PC prices dropping and fluctuating constantly and Buz got burned out. He went back to doing sales and marketing for others, doing well, but not totally satisfying.

It was during his stint with a Real Estate and Development firm in North Port, that Buz also started the music business he runs today. His love of music, and the freedom of having his own music business helps to support the other passion of motorcycles. Buz has owned several over the years. The pictures shown below are: (from left to right) #3. a 1976 Honda 360CL, #4. a 1978 Yamaha 750 Special, and #5. a 1983 Kawasaki 750 Spectre.

Buz's newest bike is the 2004 he's pictured on above. He's really impressed with this beauty and you can see why. Listening to him pull away after we talked, I could tell the Victory made a sweet music all it's own. Buz was off Rockin' and Rollin' again!
